

Beauty of Airliners – Gallery Three

SAS Caravelles at Kastrup, Copenhagen

My first ever air travel was on the SAS Caravelle which took me to London Heathrow via Copenhagen in August 1966, Flight # SK 507, departing at 21.45 from ARN
 Link to Le Caravelle Club
 Photo: Bill Armstrong

SAS Caravelle at Heathrow, London

And here we are, at Heathrow, on SAS, in a Caravelle. I remember the almost frightening sound of the Caravelle on descent to Bromma airport passing over our house in Stockholm in 1959. This was the first time I had heard of such a contraption, me being only 10 years old
 Photo: Mel Lawrence

Linjeflyg Fokker F28

A familiar sight in Sweden for many years at almost all airports. Linjeflyg domestic airline, CEO Jan Carlzon and the F28 Fellowship put wings on the Swedes with low fares and frequent flights. Red departure meant a low fare flight - red was a green light to fly
 Link to my Linjeflyg page
 Photo: Thomas Wallgren

SAS DC-9

One of my favourite airliner, the DC-9 in the "real" colors of SAS, the Viking theme. What a beautiful airliner. Why don't they make airliners with rear mounted engines anymore. Only small regional ones...
 Photo: Erik Frikke

Concorde on final at Hong Kong
 Concorde's coming back, Kai Tak isn't. Enjoy this bygone view
 Photo: Thomas Kwong

Korean Boeing 747

This is one of the most fantastic aviation sights to be seen - a Boeing 747 on approach and landing. You just can't imagine the size of this vehicle until you end up below her. Wow! Is it a bird, is it Superman, no, it is the Jumbo Jet!
 Photo: John Sweeney

Boeing 747 in the air

This is the right element for a jetliner - high above the ground, at the right speed - 500-600 miles/h, in the right airliner - Boeing 747
 Photo: Ryan Efuno

Seattle and Boeing

This is what you can see from a Boeing 737 on approach from the north to Seatac (Seattle Tacoma International) at Seattle, home of the Boeing Corp
 My images from Seatac
 Photo: Brian Hames

Now let's fly away

Hope you enjoyed this little journey into the world of airliners. The best of worlds, don't you think...
 Photo: Erik Frikke

Thanks to

Thanks to

Thanks to

The aviation world, to airliner manufacturers, to airlines. All those who provide those beautiful and exciting things for us to use and to watch and to admire

All people who takes photographs of airliners and provide them for us for free. Do respect their copyright. I merely provided thumb nails to those fantastic images

Airliners. net, the most fantastic web site for the airliner lover. Images, discussion forums, news, facts and figures.
For other providers of images and videos and stuff about airliners, go to my Avlinks page

(2001-Nov)

Go to <http://www.arliners.net>